VALIDITY OF AIRCRAFT TYPE ENDORSEMENT

In accordance with the Air Navigation Order, 1953, all professional pilots are to sit for type technical examination before attempting the type endorsement flight test. The validity of the type technical examination shall be in perpetuity provided he or she maintains flying currency on that particular type of aircraft. With immediate effect, failure to maintain flying currency for more than 1 year, will entail a complete flight test plus type technical examination on that particular type of aircraft. However, failure to maintain flying currency for more than 6 months but less than 1 year, will only entail a complete flight test on that particular type of aircraft. These above requirements are only applicable to professional pilots licence.
